

After much soul searching, the King made the only decision a King could make. He had to obey the number one law of Mantlelonia.

He sent his guards to the royal nursery to take the child away and put it to death.

