the palms team

Palms Development Company focuses on creating extraordinary online experiences for extraordinary clients. We'll work with you to create the perfect online presence for your brand.

Size is Everything.

We don't work in a massive corporate office and we don't have a mailroom. Not that there's anything wrong with that, it's just that we like knowing each other's names, and encourage our clients to know ours. Our small staff has an advantage – our group works more efficiently, more cost-effectively and most importantly, flexible to each client's unique needs. We deliver a range of services found at any agency, with the personal service you should expect.

Our Goal.

Palms Development brings your brand to life, online. We do it all when it comes to online commerce for retail stores, wholesalers and distributors. Taking your company online introduces a world of opportunity, as well as specific challenges associated with online trade. We'll assist you in establishing a successful online presence and bringing your brand to a worldwide audience.

Who's Scott?

Scott Shelton, owner of Palms Development is not your typical principal. He's worked internationally with both Hearst and Conde Nast publications in photo production for titles including Cosmopolitan and Vanity Fair. Originally from coastal Maine and an all-around New Englander, Scott can often be found sailing during the summer and skiing during winter. He believes that inspiration comes from experiencing the world, not from sitting in a cubicle. But no worries, his biggest fear is being offline, and is always within an arms reach of the Internet.

We get you.

Having a website isn't enough. You need to show your customers you understand the socially connected online world we live in.

We help you create designs that capture the personality of your business and project the image you want your customers to see. Maybe you're a small company looking to sell yourself in the big leagues; maybe you're a big company that wants to look approachable; either way, we can make it happen.

You'll come across looking professional, unique and strikingly hip all at the same time.
