

Hamm,

Please review the comments below:

Character Images:

The characters all look good. Our lady in the lower right corner is a little “China doll” looking – but I’m not sure if there is anything you can do about that but feel free to try.

Nice job on removing the shadow on Johnny Wright in the upper right. He looks like the friendly character he is.

Since we’re wrapping up, let’s look at the text and make the following changes:

1. Top of the poster, the line “Based on an original screenplay by Matthew Pundzak.” Modify that to read “An original screenplay by Matthew Pundzak” – no quotation marks. Same fonts/colors.
2. In your initial submission you included the tag line – “She finally found the man of her dreams. just one problem; he’s from the 1800s” and I asked you to remove it. After review, we decided that to update the tag line and reinsert it. Please insert the following tag line, no quotation marks, in the same position, using the same fonts as your original submission.

“She finally found the man of her dreams. Just one problem; he’s from the 1800s”

I think that will close out the project. Look forward to the final submission. I’ll be on travel starting later today, but I’ll try to keep up with any questions/submissions you might have.

Best,

Matt
