

Based on the designs so far, the Lighthouses look good but some of the octopuses seem quite aggressive. If we can find a balance between too cute and too angry this would be good.

Here are some examples that are either friendly or represent the “omni-channel” (one central buyer’s portal to more than one market experience). Ideally the octopus would show some personality and will need eyes at least.

