

A witchy-themed tourist town is causing warning signals to appear on Talak St. James' computer. The extremely handsome ladies' man and super brain of the immortal guardians is forced to investigate. Leaving his posh belongings behind is not to his liking, especially to go undercover as a high school junior. The dreaded assignment drops one very unnoticeable and frumpily dressed Josephine Stone at his feet.

Josie's not sure what made today different than yesterday, but it most assuredly changed the moment she let the new kid help her up off the ground. Talak turns into a friend she didn't know she needed. And she's going to need him more than ever when her world gets flipped on its axis. Talak takes protecting humanity to the extreme and holds nothing back to ensure Josie survives the distortion.
